

MAGICKAL PROTECTION

A man with a backpack is walking away from the viewer on a path of cracked, brown earth. The path leads into a large, swirling tunnel of green and blue energy, resembling a vortex or a magical portal. The light is bright at the end of the tunnel, creating a strong glow. The overall atmosphere is mysterious and protective.

Why Do You Need Protection?

There are many ways to protect yourself with magick. Some books show you how to defend against curses and psychic attack, but this book can also help to shield you from cruel people, bullies, bad luck, gossip and people who undermine you.

If you are afraid of violence, robbery or random accidents, you can help to make yourself safe with magick. If somebody is merely unpleasant, you can protect yourself from their subtle malice. If somebody means you great harm, you can stop them in their tracks.

You can protect your self, your home, your work and your loved ones, all with a series of simple rituals.

You may think you are cursed or under psychic attack. If so, you can put an end to this attack. You may think you've done something wrong, or performed 'bad magick' in the past. You may even believe somebody has cast the 'evil eye' upon you. This book can take away such problems.

If you've never performed magick before, that is absolutely fine. Even if magick is new to you, everything you need to know to protect yourself is included in these pages. Magickal

Protection is a great way to get into magick, but the book has also been written for people who are already deeply involved with magick. It should be perfect for beginners, while giving advanced protection to experienced occultists.

How Much Protection Do You Need?

If you are under attack from a bully, a cruel boss, a mean partner or an unknown assailant, you need protection. If you feel you are having a run of bad luck or that you may be cursed, you need protection. There are thousands of reasons why this book can work for you. It can keep you safe from strange psychic dangers or protect you from something as ordinary and deadly as a random road accident.

It's important, though, to get some perspective. Life is not always safe, and that's actually OK. The easiest way to avoid danger is simply to lock yourself away to avoid all harm. But that, of course, is no way to live.

When children are playing, we repeatedly tell them to ‘be careful’ or to stop hanging upside down off that tree branch, because we’re afraid of the danger. And yet we still let them play. Those kids are having a great time, and it’s worth risking a broken arm for the sake of experiencing an exciting life. But we don’t want our kids to get hurt, so we protect them as much as we can – from people, from illness, from accidents.

Finding a good balance is the difficult part, and the same is true with magick. You may live an ordinary life and want protection. You may lead a magickal life and need supernatural protection. Or you may lead an adventurous life, or work in a dangerous career and need protection from the inherent dangers.

This book encourages you to protect yourself when needed, but I don't want you to spend your life living in fear and putting up all the barriers you can to ensure no harm will ever come to you. That approach merely shows that you are terrified of life, and then you will probably attract more bad luck. This book should give you sufficient protection that you can be courageous in the world, and experience everything you want to experience.

If you really, really want to avoid having an airplane crash, the obvious advice is - don't fly airplanes. But, clearly, that's not useful advice. If you love flying, or need to fly for work, or just want to take a vacation then you can use magick to make it as safe as possible. Anybody that wants to fly should fly.

That doesn't mean you won't ever crash. I am a trained private pilot and I fly occasionally. I used to be a keen pilot, flying all the time, and even when using magickal protection I had some near misses, involving engine problems, other aircraft getting too close and unexpected bad weather. I survived, but not always without a scratch. I still feel grateful, though, because I managed to get out of situations that were potentially deadly. When you fly a lot – and I mean a lot - you tend to crash occasionally. To me, magick gave me the confidence to fly often, and get away with it even when the odds were against me.

I used protection magick to keep me safe while travelling through a city once, but I was robbed. Does this mean the magick was a failure? Not at all. They only took my credit cards, which I promptly cancelled, and they never noticed the big wad of cash that was clearly visible in my wallet. Everything was back to normal in 24 hours and I was barely shaken. I can only think that the magick made that robbery as bearable as it could have been.

The point of these stories is to show that protection magick will help keep you safe, but it will not shield you completely from life, and nor should it aim to do so. Life is an adventure and we sometimes have accidents and problems.

This book is aimed at protecting you from the sort of unpleasantness that makes life feel unfair, unkind and unbearable. There are times when you have bad luck, feel afraid of people, get pushed around, get cursed or attacked by people, and this magick can put a stop to that. You can also protect yourself from accidents, as well as protecting your home and family.

I only tell the two stories above – about the flying and the robbery – to be as honest as possible, and say that although you will be genuinely shielded, you won't be invincible. You must still take care and look after yourself.

I have often used spells to remain 'invisible' in dangerous areas, because I enjoy passing through such places – but I also know that it's important to keep a low profile. When passing through those areas I don't attract attention to myself.

You need to contribute to the magick. If your home is under threat from thieves, get good locks as well as good magick.

This might sound outrageously obvious, but many people think that magick will be so powerful they can do whatever they want and remain protected. A young man I knew used a protection ritual to avoid violence, and went out on a drunken night and thought he could verbally abuse anybody he wanted. He found out how wrong he was. Mind you, when he was punched, he did manage to keep his teeth intact – so perhaps the magick helped after all. The point here is that protection magick is meant to keep you safe, not to make you a
